

Workshop RECON models applied

ARENA, University of Oslo
Friday 25 April 2008

Background and outline

The background for the seminar is the challenges that RECON project participants have experienced when engaging with the project's theoretical models, notably when they have endeavoured to adapt them to different research areas. The seminar will deal with how the research undertaken in RECON's work packages can make use of the models as analytical tools, as well as how these can best be operationalised in the different research fields of RECON.

RECON has adopted a research approach that some of our large group of contributors are not overly familiar with. It is therefore important to have meetings of this kind to familiarise everybody with RECON's approach and intellectual tools, as well as to permit space for an ongoing critical engagement with the overarching project. The main intention with this meeting is to take stock of and discuss the process of applying the RECON models within the different work-packages, as a means of collective project integration.

Practical information

The workshop will take place in ARENA's seminar room, in Sognsveien 68. Participants will stay at the Rica Travel Hotel in Arbeidergata 4. ARENA will reimburse the participants' travel costs. Please save all original tickets and receipts which would need to be sent to ARENA together with a signed version of the reimbursement form.

Maps, travel information and reimbursement form available at the workshop web page under 'events' at: <http://www.reconproject.eu>
